Alumnus J. Brady Lum is the president and chief operating officer of Special Olympics, which has more than three million athletes with intellectual disabilities participating in over 181 countries. Mr. Lum was a sensor manager, and most recently vice president, at The Coca-Cola Company for fifteen years before joining Special Olympics in 2008.

In addition to his professional career, Mr. Lum has been involved with a variety of community organizations. He served as chairman of the board of the national Hands On Network and chaired the Strategic Planning Committee of the combined Hands on Network and Points of Light Foundation.

A Houston native, Mr. Lum was a Jefferson Scholar at U.Va., and graduated in 1989 from the College of Arts & Sciences, with honors, with a degree in government and foreign affairs. After graduation, Mr. Lum received a Luce Scholarship to study in Asia, and worked at the Institute of Strategic and International Studies in Kuala Lumpur. He later went on to receive an MBA from the Harvard University School of Business. In the Jeffersonian tradition of lifelong learning, Mr. Lum is currently pursuing a master’s degree in music from the Berklee College of Music in Boston.

Mr. Lum continues to have strong ties to U.Va., as he serves on the Jefferson Scholars National Selection Committee and the Mead Endowment Advisory Board.
